About Tolima

The department of Tolima is located between the areas of the dry valley of the Magdalena River, which is a territory recognized by its geographic wealth and climatic diversity. It hosts landscapes filled with broad plains, unrivaled valleys and mountain ranges, as well as white, snow-capped mountains.

In geographic terms, it is located on the central mountain range, exactly in the midwestern part of the country, and borders the departments of Caldas, Cundinamarca, Huila, Cauca, Valle del Cauca, Quindío and Risaralda. Tolima has unparalleled agricultural wealth, known for its rice, cotton and coffee and their excellent quality. Tolima has great water sources due to its proximity to the Magdalena river, which crosses through the entire department.

Cañón de las Hermosas

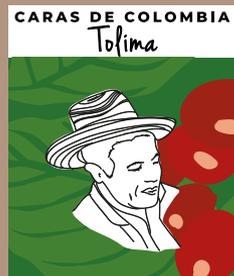

Cañón de las Hermosas is located in the southeast region of Tolima. It is a natural phenomenon that mixes the greenish colors of nature and the waters coming from the tributaries of the main surrounding rivers. This canyon is located near the Chaparral municipality, which is a coffee-producing region that contributes to the economic development of this area with its agricultural activities. This region used to be a stronghold of violence in Colombia, but now it is a peaceful territory.
